

I work for the airline industry and do not think it is a good idea to lift the ban. There would be hundreds of different conversations going on in a very small space and I think a lot of people would become upset. Some people use this time to think and reflect on things going on in their lives.